BRIAND'S NEW WAR MINISTER TO REBUILD FRENCH ARMY

Reduction Of Service And Cut In Expenditures Official's Plan

CHEAP COAL NEED

Liberated Territories' Minister Tells Of Necessity Of More Fuel

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Jan. 19.—The first act of M. Barthou on taking up the office of Minister of War was to call on each of the Marshals of France and discuss with him the heavy cost of national defense.

Interviewed by the Matin, the Minister said he felt strongly the necessity for the organisation of the army on a new basis.

"My immediate program," he said in conclusion, "comprises two formulas—the reduction of military service and the reduction of military expenditure. I am supposed to have some determination, and I shall have enough not to belie my reputation in that respect."

M. le Trocquer, the new Minister of Public Works, who is an engineer and technician, hopes to be able to give the railway system of the country financial and administrative solidity.

WILL IMPROVE FINANCES

He informed a representative of the Petit Journal that the expenditure of his department would be so framed as to benefit the recovery of the country.

He expressed himself an advocate of road reconstruction and of the development of canal traffic, stating that 115 million francs had been allocated for modernising the canals.

M. Loucheur, the Minister of Liberated Territories, interviewed by the Temps, emphasised the importance of supplying cheap coal to the brick, tile, glass, cement and other industries in the devastated regions, as a means of bringing about rehabilitation.

PRESS IS PLEASED

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Jan. 17.—The papers comment most favorably upon the new Cabinet, which, in their opinion, well reflects the national will and aspirations as expressed at the last elections.

The papers are especially pleased at the co-operation of such energetic and experienced men as MM. Briand, Barthou, and Doumer.

A fact worth noticing is that two members of the new Cabinet are former Governors-General of French Indo-China. Senator Doumer, who is now to have charge of the national finances, resided at Saigon from 1896 to 1902, and Deputy Albert Sarraut was there from 1911 to 1914, M. Sarraut is Colonial Secretary in the new Cabinet.

Paris, Jan. 19.—The following diplomatic appointments are gazetted: M. Paul Claudel, Minister at Copenhagen, to be Ambassador at Tokio; M. de Fonlenay, Minister at Belgrade to be Minister at Copenhagen; and M. Simon, Counsellor of Embassy to be in charge of the Legation at Belgrade.

REPLY OF PREMIER

Paris, Jan. 19.—To M. Briand's telegram, expressing pleasure at the prospect of again working with him for the maintenance of the cordial relations between Great Britain and France, Mr. Lloyd George replied as follows:

"I think already of our forthcoming conference, and call to mind with satisfaction our friendly co-operation in moments that were critical for our two countries, and I have confidence that the same spirit of union which upheld us then, will uphold us for the decisions that we have to make, and on which will depend, not only the destiny of the two great nations which we have the honor to represent, but also that of Europe as a whole."

M. Briand has also exchanged friendly telegrams with the Belgian and Italian Premiers.

Steamer Hsin Kong Not Lost; Boat Sighted At Sea

THE sighting of a life boat from the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company steamer Hsin Kong by a Japanese merchantman travelling to Tsingtao gave rise to reports that the Hsin Kong was lost. The Hsin Kong is now on the run to Foochow, Canton and Amoy and is not even behind schedule but the sighting of her life boat brings to light an interesting tale.

When the Hsintah was wrecked off the Chefoo Promontory a month ago the Hsin Kong was sent to the scene for salvage work. Life boats from the Hsin Kong were used to transfer the passengers from the damaged vessel. One of these was tied to the Hsintah at night and the next morning it was seen that the boat had been torn loose by the heavy seas.

The China Merchants steamer Kaifeng, which left here yesterday for Chingwantao, sighted the life boat on her last trip to Shanghai from Chingwantao, left her course to investigate and found the lifeboat empty. Oars and other equipment were taken from the life boat and it was set adrift. Before this a Japanese steamer had noted the boat and notified the Customs authorities.

ADMIRAL STRAUS IS ARRIVING HERE ON NEXT EMPRESS

Successor To Gleaves Will Take Command Of Asiatic Fleet At Manila

Admiral Joseph Straus, who comes to the Far East to relieve Admiral Albert Gleaves as commander of the United States Asiatic Fleet, will arrive in Shanghai a week from tomorrow on the Empress of Russia but will continue on to Manila where he will take his new ocmmand.

Admiral Gleaves, who is now in Vladivostok with the Court of Inquiry conducting an investigation of the killing of Lieutenant W. H. Langdon by a Japanese soldier on the morning of January 9, will return here next week on the U. S. S. New Orleans, which is expected to remain at Vladivostok only a few days, until the inquiry is completed.

The destroyer Elliot, which is now in port, will take Admiral Gleaves to Manila where he will officially hand over his command to his successor. Admiral Gleaves will then go on the Elliot to Hongkong where he will board the Empress scheduled to sail for Vancouver on February 9. The Empress sails from Shanghai on February 12. It is expected that Admiral Gleaves will take the report of the Langdon affair direct to Washington although the decision will probably be announced by the navy department as soon as the investigation is finished, owing to the attitude of the American newspapers.

TWO MORE CASES

(U. S. Navcl Radio)

Washington, Jan. 18.—Information has reached here today to the effect that, since the shooting in the back of the American Lieutenant W. S. Langdon, by a Japanese sentry at Vladivostok two other Americans, both in naval uniform, have been held up by Japanese sentries.

The two men, presumably from the Cruiser Albany, had been sent ashore to search for Lieut. Langdon's revolver, with which he replied to the Japanese sentry's shot. They were challenged and stopped, and forced to identify themselves.

PLEDGE IS BROKEN

The report of this new stopping of Americans in uniform, by Japanese, has occasioned much surprise, in view of the recent Japanese assurances that no further interferences with uniformed Americans would be permitted, as a result of the American protest.

No reply has as yet been made by the Japanese government to the American protest, and it is possible that Washington may be forced to send a second note before a reply is obtained.

The State Department announces that, from advices received after the Japanese inquiry, "it seems probable that the sentry who fired the shot that killed Lieut. Langdon left his post and molested an officer in uniform, who was proceeding in an orderly manner along the street."

SHANGHAI GIRL SECURES DIVORCE IN SAN FRANCISCO

Mrs. Mabel M. Goodfellow-Witchell Begins Search For Children

EX-HUSBAND IN SAIGON

Was Charged With Illegally Transporting Girl From Indo-China

Granted an interlocutory decree of divorce at San Francisco on Dec. 16 from her husband James Henry Witchell, formerly with the Standard Oil at Hongkong and formerly rice mill manager at Saigon, Mrs. Mabel M. Goodfellow-Witchell, a Shanghai girl left the courtroom of Superior Judge Thomas F. Graham vowing to devote her life to tracing two of her missing children and to regain the custody of two other children now in England.

Witchell was brought to San Francisco from Chicago on a charge of having illegally transported Miss Helen J. Danson, of Saigon, French Indo China, into the United States, according to reports from San Francisco.

Released of that charge he and Miss Danson vanished from the ken of the San Francisco courts. While in Chicago he claimed to have placed contracts with Ohio rubber manufacturers for the construction of a dirigible to ply between Saigon and Hongkong via Canton.

VISITED IN SHANGHAI

Witchell has returned to Saigon. He arrived at Shanghai on the Empress of Japan, which docked here on December 28, and stopped a day in Shanghai before going on to Hongkong.

One sister and the mother of Witchell's former wife are living at the Palace Hotel. Miss Lillian Goodfellow, the sister, is employed at the Asiatic Petroluem Company.

The whirligig life of three Asiatic ports was the background of Witchell infatuation for Miss Danson and his desertion of his wife. Mrs. Witchell, daughter of Mrs. William Goodfellow, of Shanghai, married Witchell here in April of 1910.

Later Witchell joined the Standard Oil Company at Hongkong and afterward removed to Saigon where he met Miss Danson. Mrs. Witchell testified that Witchell deserted her in March, 1918, after she had remonstrated with him regarding his attentions to Miss Danson. She alleged in her complaint that his profligacy and dispation caused him to neglect to provide for herself and children although he is reputedly wealthy.

RESUMES MAIDEN NAME

The complaint sets forth that two children, Cecil, 8 and Percival, 7, are occupying a house at Brockley, St. Johns, England, which is claimed as community property. Two other children, Dorothy, 5, George, 3, are alleged to have been taken to America by Miss Danson and their whereabouts are at present unknown to Mrs. Witchell who has obtained the court's permission to resume her maiden name of Goodfellow.

Specifically the charges in the plaintiff's pleadings were:

"During August, 1917, at Saigon, Cochin China, one Helen J. Danson arrived at said place about six weeks before the birth of George who was born on Sept. 9, 1917. They met frequently at the Cercle Sportif Club at Saigon and he gave her gifts and automobile rides. Mrs. Fred Goode, a sister of the plaintiff saw them exchange notes and heard them make appointments to meet at the Cap. St. Jacques roadhouse."

Familiarity between the couple is alleged to have occurred in San Francisco. The wife further charged that Witchell humiliated her by telling her friends that he was sending his children away in care of Miss Danson to protect them from Mrs. Witchell.

ONE RENT RA'SE IN TEN YEARS IS JAPAN PROPOSAL

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, (by mail).—It is understood that the Government propose to introduce in the Diet next session a bill to protect tenants against profiteering landlords.

Unless a landlord can show good cause before a special Rents Board, he will be prohibited from raising house-rents more than once every ten years.

The landlords naturally will put up strong opposition to the bill in the Diet, and hot debates are anticipated.

Death Penalty Is Asked By District Attorney At Close Of Furbush Hearing

Major Holcomb Contends Accused Seaman Was Conscious Of What He Was Doing When He Shot Richard Hazelton

When the arguments following the murder trial of Henry B. Furbush were brought to a close yesterday in the United States Court for China Maj. C. P. Holcomb, United States District Attorney, addressed the court and saying much as he regretted to do it, he felt that he must ask that the accused seaman be found guilty of murder in the first degree and that the death penalty be imposed.

Under the American criminal code that applies in China the crime of murder in the first degree carries the single penalty of death, so if Furbush is found guilty of murder in the first degree the Court has no discretion in the matter of the penalty and must sentence the man to death. The penalty for murder in the second degree is imprisonment for not less than ten years or may be any term of years up to life imprisonment in the discretion of the Court.

VERDICT AWAITED

In the course of the arguments made yesterday by Messrs. M. L. Heen and Leonard Hartigan for the defense and by Maj. C. P. Holcomb for the Government long lists of authorities and references were submitted to Judge Lobingier, so it may not be said with any certainty when a verdict will be announced by the court. Major Holcomb's request that Furbush be held guilty of murder in the first degree is based on the contention that Furbush had some knowledge of what he was doing when he drew the pistol from his pocket in the cloak room of the El Dorado Cafe on the night of December 13 and shot Richard Hazelton.

FURBUSH'S CONDITION

In the course of the argument presented for the Government it was pointed out in support of this contention that after he had fired the shot Furbush was sufficiently mentally alert to be able to run away from the scene and dispose of the weapon. In the same connection it was urged also that witnesses said he was able to talk rationally when questioned by police officers after the shooting when he was arrested.

The whole defense rests upon the contention that Furbush had no knowledge whatever of what he was doing when he shot Hazelton, for, as the accused seaman testified, his mind became an entire blank after the serving of the first drink to himself and his companion Francis Quinn in the El Dorado Cafe.

The state of temporary mental aberration that the defense contends Furbush suffered was induced, according to the defense, by alcoholic drinks to which Furbush was more or less unaccustomed and the character of which remains undisclosed. It was urged also that the blow over the eye which Furbush received in the course of the evening might also be taken as a factor that brought about his mental lapse. Strong emphasis was laid by the defense in support of these contentions on the assertions of several witnesses who saw Furbush soon after the shooting and who said he appeared to be dazed at that time.

OPENING ARGUMENT

The trial was resumed at 9:30 a.m. and counsel for Furbush offered in evidence depositions of his shipmates as to his character, which were received without objection, but the Judge ruled out the certified copy of the coroner's inquest on the British seaman who was found dead in the neighborhood of the Trenches from alcoholic poisoning.

The deposition of a wine merchant on the question of the kind of liquor served in the trenches was received in evidence subject to the District Attorney's objections to certain portions. The proprietor of the El Dorado was recalled to rebut this deposition and testified that he had purchased a large quantity of champagne direct from France and produced a receipted bill for a shipment in October last. Electrify Railways In Japan Is National Plan

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, (by mail).—Among the bills to be introduced in the current session of the Imperial Diet by the Railway Department, the most important are those proposing the electrification of the state railways, those mapping out a complete system of railways throughout the country, and those introducing amendments in the light railway law.

According to the Tokio Nichi Nichi, the Government plan for the future railway system comprises the construction of several hundred miles of new lines connecting all the important places of the Empire.

The bill, when introduced in the Diet, is expected to elicit a pretty heated discussion, thinks the journal, in view of the paramount importance of the plan as viewed from the standpoint of individual and local interest.

ELECTRIFICATION NEEDED

The proposition for the electrification of State railways, laid down by the authorities, is due, according to the Nichi Nichi, to a conviction that no real development of railway service can be ensured, without electrification, in a country like Japan, where the output of coal is so greatly limited.

The Government proposes to effect the amalgamation of all the hydro-electric concerns of the Empire, so as to establish one great electric-current-supply system. The plan seriously affects private electricity enterprises and naturally, will give rise to boisterous discusions in the Diet, says the Journal

TO INCREASE SUBSIDIES

The feature of the proposed amendment to the light railway law lies in the increase of the Government subsidies by some 2 percent. According to the existing regulations, 5 percent of the constructive expenditure for light railway is subsidised. The new proposal is to increase the rate of the subsidies from 5 to 7 percent with a view to the encouragement of light railway enterprises, since, pending the completion of the Government plan of railway expansion, the developments of local interests depend, in a large measure, on the development of light railways.

The journal thinks that the bill in question will be passed by the Diet without the least difficulty. It is a moot question, however, in the paper's opinion, whether the other bills contemplated by the Railway authorities will meet with ready support in the Diet under the existing financial circumstances.

Gaston, Williams, Wigmore Answers Suit Boulon Filed

Gaston, Williams and Wigmore, Far Eastern Division, Gaston Williams and Wigmore of New York and Mr. William H. Swift Jr., vice president of the G.W.W. corporation, filed an answer yesterday in the United States Court for China to the suit begun a few weeks ago by Mr. F. G. Boulon, who claims damages in the sum of G.$300,000 on the ground that the defendants named wrongfully and maliciously caused his arrest and trial on charges of embezzlement that were held unfounded.

In the reply filed it is denied that the charges of embezzlement were brought against Mr. Boulon, who formerly was manager of the Shanghai branch of the company, without reasonable cause or sufficient grounds.

In support of this it is contended that a state of affairs in connection with the company's business disclosed by an investigation had been laid before an accredited Shanghai attorney, Mr. William S. Fleming, and that acting on his opinion it was seen fit to bring the embezzlement charges that were later tried before Judge Lobingier. In conducting this prosecution the answer sets forth that the defendants relied and acted on the advice of Mr. Fleming.

The answer was filed by Mr. Stirling Fessenden of the law firm of Jernigan, Fessenden and Rose.

ATTEMPT TO SELL BANK REVEALS BIG DEFICIENCY

Directors Of Farrow's Are Said To Have Had Huge Debit Balances

MILLIONS ARE MISSING

Condition Of Establishment Discovered By U.S. Intended Purchaser

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 19.—New disclosures in regard to the failure of Farrow's Bank were made at the Guildhall Police Court today, when three of the directors, Farrow, Hart and Crotch, were brought up on remand.

The prosecutor stated that the discovery of the bank's true position was made by the New York firm of Norton and Company, which concluded an agreement to take over the control of the bank by the payment of £500,000, of which £100,000 was payable to the retiring directors as compensation.

Mr. Read, Messrs. Norton's London manager, was elected to the managership of Farrow's last October, and started to make an investigation, as the result of which the bank was proved to be hopelessly insolvent. After this the agreement of purchase was cancelled, and the matter submitted to the Board of Trade and the Treasury.

The prosecutor said that, except in 1908, the bank made nothing but losses, which totalled over £1,000,000. Apart from the depreciation in the value of securities, the total deficiency was estimated at £2,800,000. An extraordinary feature of the affair, added the prosecutor, was that there were huge debit balances standing against the names of the directors.

FAMINE LOAN IS SIGNED; SURTAX FROM MARCH 1

Four Millions Advanced To Ministry Of Finance For Relief Work

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 19.—The Minister of Finance and representatives of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, the International Banking Corporation, the Banque de l'Indo-Chine and the Yokohama Specie Bank signed the $4,000,000 famine loan this afternoon.

The Customs surcharge of 10 percent, which forms the security for the loan, will operate from March 1.

ACTION AT CANTON

Canton, Jan. 18.—The Military Government has ordered that the maritime Customs Service functioning in the provinces under its jurisdiction will be subject to its orders and control on and after February 1. In arriving at this decision, the Government states, it was influenced by the following facts and conditions:

Firstly, that the action of the Government was justified by right. The Customs service is one of the Government services, and since the Military Government exercises absolute control, de facto as well as de jure, over all administrative and financial affairs in the Constitutionalist provinces, it considers it an anomaly and absurdity that the Customs service should function in these provinces under the orders and authority of Peking and collect from them revenue which is diverted to uses elsewhere which are "detrimental to the interests of the country."

NO PERSONNEL CHANGE

Secondly, the Military Government, recognising the efficient organisation of the Customs service and the good work it has rendered in China, holds to the policy that the change of control from the authority of Peking to the Military Government will not in the least affect the present personnel who acknowledge its authority, nor the rules of the service.

As the Customs revenue has been hypothecated at various times for foreign obligations, it is not intended that the interests of creditors should be in any way jeopardised. The revenue from the South-Western provinces will bear a proportionate share of this burden which will form, as hitherto, a first charge upon it.

COMMITTEE MEETS

At an executive committee meeting of the Women's Famine Relief Society held on Wednesday last, it was decided to send money to the different missions in the famine

Alien Property Probe Demanded By Untermeyer

SAMUEL UNTERMEYER

(U. S. Naval Radio through Reuter)

New York, Jan. 19.—Mr. Samuel Untermeyer, the well-known lawyer, who has taken a prominent part in exposing irregularities in public and corporate bodies, in the course of an address here, recommended an investigation by the Department of Justice into the conduct of the Custodian of Alien Property.

He said: "If a fraction of what comes to me is true, the investigation would reveal the most mortifying scandals that have ever befallen this country."

ASKS CAPTAINS NOT TO LET MEN CARRY ARMS

Struthers And Dixon Takes Steps To Reduce Chances Of Shootings Here

As a consequence of the recent shooting tragedies, particularly that resulting in the death of R. F. Hazelton, and in an effort to reduce the chances of such occurrences in the future, one local shipping firm has taken steps toward seeing that none of their employes come ashore in Shanghai armed.

The company in question is Struthers and Dixon, operators of the ship on which Furbush, Hazelton's slayer, was engaged. Mr. Leonard Everett, general manager of the company, has written the captain of all their ships urging them to take all the means in their power to see that none of their men be allowed to land bearing weapons.

It is believed that other shipping firms may take similar steps.

FOOD COSTS IN U. S. AND BRITAIN ARE BEING CUT

Eight Per Cent Drop In States, Eleven Points In London

Wholesale Reductions Seen As Forerunner Of Retail Change

(U. S. Naval Radio through Reuter)

Washington, Jan. 19.—The Director of Labor has reported that retail prices of 22 food commodities decreased by an average of 8 percent in December as compared with November, and 10 per cent as against the prices a year ago, while sugar decreased by 18 percent.

BRITISH FIGURES DOWN

London, Jan. 20.—The official cost of living figures show a reduction of eleven points in the past two months and a further substantial reduction is anticipated.

London, Jan. 19.—Mr. F. G. Kellaway, M.P., as head of the Department of Overseas Trade, has issued an interesting statement. He says his Department has been endeavoring, with ever-increasing anxiety in the last six months, to assist traders who find themselves unexpectedly embarrassed by their overseas commitments. The situation has continued grave, but the British banking and credit system has weathered the worst of the storm, and has strikingly proved its elasticity and solidity at a time when a serious collapse was not impossible.

SENSATIONAL DROP

The fall in wholesale prices has, he says, been rapid and even sensational, and it is anticipated that there will be a fall in retail prices which will ease the industrial depression and facilitate a revival. The most puzzling element in the present situation is coal.

There is not a single market in the world exempt from commercial reaction. There are hopeful indications of improvement in Canada, but the Far Eastern markets show less definite signs of recovery.

The outlook in India is momentarily dark, but the situation is favorable to a rapid recovery immediately the supplies, which are now congesting the ports, are moved.

EXCHANGE DEADLOCK

There are symptoms of indigestion in South Africa, but the outlook is now distinctly more favorable while, as regards Australia and New Zealand, British exporters are embarrassed by the difficulty of securing remittances, owing to the exchange deadlock.

Dealing with the European situation, Mr. Kellaway emphasises the co-relation of prosperity in Europe and Britain. He says it is not the restoration of currencies at pre-war values that is needed, but the stabilisation of exchange at any figure, and this can only be attained when a term is put to inflation.

He emphasises the difficulties in the way of working any export credit schemes and concludes by advising British manufacturers and exporters to seize on the present moment to make preparations for the revival of the old trade demand, which he believes they will see before many more months, and especially to look to the Dominions.

SUGAR MARKET UPSET

(U. S. Naval Radio through Reuter)

Washington, Jan. 19.—Mr. E. F. Atkins, a Boston importer of Cuban sugar, in protesting before the Committee on Ways and Means against the proposed sugar tariff said that the price of Cuban sugar was at present below the cost of production and increased duties would prove disastrous.

CHINA FLOUR SITUATION

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 20.—Replying to the suggestion that flour was being imported from China while that country was suffering from a shortage of food, the Royal Commission on Wheat Supplies states that when the famine in China became known an offer to cancel all existing contracts was made to the Chinese Government, but was refused. No cargoes were received in Great Britain, it states, until 1920, and the final contract made last June is that under which small consignments are now arriving.

British Imperial Wireless Stations In Action Soon Press Heads Are Promised

(Reuter's Service)

London, January 19.—Lord Burnham, of the Daily Telegraph, today introduced a deputation to the Postmaster-General (Mr. Albert Illingworth) which was representative of the whole press of the British Empire. He said that at present press rates existed in name only across the Atlantic, and deferred rates were useless. It was, he urged, particularly desirable that the Government's policy in regard to wireless telegraphy should be known.

Sir George Riddell, who is associated with a number of London publications, mentioned that the English press was constantly reproached for not publishing sufficient news from the dominions.

After speeches by various representatives of the Dominions press, Illingworth said the scheme for establishing a chain of Imperial wireless stations was making progress, and he hoped the service would be working to Cairo next May, and thence to Mairobi (British East Africa) and Windhoek (South-West Africa). Singapore, Hongkong and Australia would be included in the circuit. The various Dominions Governments were being consulted in the matter. The wireless stations within the Dominions would be under Government control.

Mr. Illingworth added that efforts were being made to improve the apparatus and speed up the cable services. The Government attached great importance to prompt and cheap communication with the whole Empire, but he was unable to make any definite statement of policy.

He welcomed the formation of a commitee representing the press, the Stock Exchange, the Baltic, Lloyds, and other big cable users, which would be able to consult and advise the Government.

Wilkins Company Case In French Court Today

Jurisdiction was waived yesterday by the International Mixed Court in the case of T. S. King, wealthy Chinese who is charged with having received contracts and samples stolen from Messrs. Wilkins Brothers, and he will appear for trial in the French Mixed Court this morning at the same time as B. Stransky, former manager of the company's import department, who is involved.

King's case came before American Assessor Tenney and Magistrate Yui, Mr. D'Auxion de Ruffe appearing for the complainant company and Mr. Ting, who will be associated with Mr. Barraud in the French Mixed Court cases, for the defendant. Mr. de Ruffe asked that the defendant's bail, which had been previously set at $400, be raised as the amounts involved in the charge totaled between $10,000 and $20,000.

CHARGE CONTRACT THEFTS

Counsel then stated to the Court that another man (Stransky) would appear for trial in the French Mixed Court in connection with the case this morning. As all the contracts alleged to have been stolen, more than 200 in all, and other documents were in the hands of the French Assessor, it would facilitate matters if King's case could be heard in the French Court, providing the International Court was willing to allow it and counsel for the defense agreed. He had received a letter from the French Assessor stating that he was willing to hear the case in conjunction with that of the other man.

Mr. Ting stated that he would leave the matter entirely in the hands of the Court, but he would like to point out that the complaint as filed in this Court disclosed no offense. Mr. Ting then asked the Court to consider the matter of the sealing orders issued with regard to King's place of business at 43 Nanking Road. This order worked a hardship on the defendant in the way of loss of business. His client denied absolutely being an accomplice of the man now charged in the French Court and now that the police had seized all documents there was no necessity for the offices to be closed up.

ASKS FOR BAIL

Mr. de Ruffe said that he had asked to have the offices closed because the business of Wilkins Brothers was being carried on there. He asked that bail of $10,000 be fixed in order to cover all risks.

Mr. Paul M. Wilkins, general Manager of Wilkins Brothers, gave evidence to the effect that some time ago the firm had discovered that a number of documents were missing and a warrant had been issued for a man employed by the company. They then found that King and another Chinese named D. T. Wong, were using the firm's contracts and had been asking dealers to cancel their contracts with Wilkins Brothers and take over contracts with them. Mr. Wilkins said he could bring dealers into Court to prove this and to show that the men had been misrepresenting the complainant company. He estimated the damage suffered at between $10,000 and $20,000.

COMPLAINT DENIED

Mr. Ting said that the defendants denied ever encroaching on the business of the complainant firm and asked the Court to order the seals removed from the offices. The defendants, he said, would undertake to do no further business until the French Court case was settled. He stated that he had no objection to the French Mixed Court taking jurisdiction in the matter.

The Court refused to order the offices unsealed since the case was to come up at an early date and ruled that the case be turned over to the French Mixed Court and defendant's bail be raised to $2,000 cash.

Paris, Jan. 19.—The fiftieth anniversary of the foundation of the German Empire passed off in perfect calm, and nowhere was there any interruption work.

Suit Against Electric Company Adjourned

The suit brought against the Soochow Electric Company by Bowern and Company for specific performance of an alleged contract to buy $150,000 worth of machinery was adjourned for three weeks by Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Kwan in the Mixed Court yesterday, the continuance being granted on a stipulation between Mr. Paul M. Linebarger, counsel for the defendants, and Mr. P. W. Goldring, for the plaintiffs. Inability of an important witness to attend because of death in his family was the cause of the adjournment.

The defendants claim that they never bought any machinery from the plaintiffs, entering only into conjectural negotiations and making no contract. They also claim that they have made ineffectual efforts to obtain information regarding the machinery in order to see if it is fitted for the purposes of the defendants.

GERMANS GIVEN FINAL CHANCE FOR SETTLEMENT

Bergmann Is Accused Of Attempting To Create Allied Dissension

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 19.—In connection with the arrival in Paris of Herr Bergmann, the German delegate to the Reparations Commission, who has been negotiating with the Allied representatives, and apparently endeavoring to create differences of opinion between the Allies, it is authoritatively pointed out that this will be the German's last opportunity of submitting their own reparation proposals to the Allies.

The Allies' demands, it is asserted, are not at all unreasonable, and already great concessions have been made. Unless something is done now a settlement may be reached over the heads of the Germans.

shows that the sentry ran across the street, calling out: "American?" whereon Langdon halted, and answered in the affirmative. The sentry then fired, from a distance of six feet, and Langdon replied with two shots from his revolver.

Lieut. Langdon was a total abstainer. The sentry admits firing the first shot, but asserts that he was forced to pursue Langdon, who did not halt. His rifle, he states, was discharged accidentally. He confesses that he was very much excited, but desired only to seize Langdon's electric torch, and take him to the guardroom for identification.

The sentry's account of the shooting now practically coincides with the version given by Lieut. Langdon just before he died.

Shanghai College Notes

Midwinter exercises at Shanghai College last Monday afternoon were made the occasion of an eloquent address by Doctor C. T. Wang, China's representative at the Peace Conference. The subject he chose was "Power." The whole student body gave the speaker a tremendous ovation.

"The activities of the whole universe may be summarised in this word, Power," said Doctor Wang. "In thunder and lightning, wind, water, and other natural agencies, there is an unmeasurable amount of power. But these can do no work unless man knows how to control them. So above the natural forces and power there is a still greater power, namely mental power. It is this power which enslaves steam, electricity, the winds and what not, and makes them drive steamers, pull trains, weave cloth, and do thousands of kinds of useful work. Civilisation consists chiefly in the development of this kind of power.

"The uncivilised man fights with his fists and arms, and these are only three feet long. But the man who knows the use of bows and arrows can kill his enemy many yards away; that means that his arms are extended that long. The Germans can shoot a projectile 75 miles away; their arms are 75 miles long! By means of the telescope our eyes may be extended millions of miles far, by telephones our ears are extended hundreds of miles.

"Right education consists in the development of our power to do good. We must develop our minds, especially in college, by hard and honest work; and this development of our mental powers should not stop at graduation, but should continue as long as life lasts. The highest ideal is to cultivate our power to do good for the service of men and women in our land."

Mexican Miners Are Drowned When Dam Bursts At Pachuca

(Reuter's Service)

Mexico City, Jan. 19.—A dam has collapsed at the mining town of Pachuca, some 60 miles northeast of here, where a sixth of Mexico's total silver is produced.

The town has been flooded. Most of the mines are high-level, but four lower-level mines were immediately flooded.

The men were at work in the mines when the dam burst.

It is estimated that 100 persons have been drowned and 200 injured, whilst 1,000 are homeless. Medical supplies, doctors and nurses are being hurried to Pachuca.

SPECIAL ISSUE STAMPS COMING TO U.S. POST OFFICE

The United States Post Office Department has issued a special series of postage stamps in commemoration of the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims in December of 1620.

The stamps are issued in three denominations, as follows:

1-cent, green; subject, "The Mayflower."

2-cent, red; subject, "Landing of the Pilgrims."

5-cent, blue; subject, "Signing of the Compact."

The dimensions of the stamps are approximately 1-1/16 by 3/4 inches. In a straight horizontal line at the top are the words "Pilgrim Tercentenary," directly below, at left and right, are the years "1620" and "1920." Beneath the subject appears its title upon a curving ribbon. Within circles in the two lower corners are numerals of denomination, with the word "cents" in a straight horizontal line between. The border at the left of the picture a vertical row of hawthorn blossoms (the British mayflour); the border at the right contains a row of trailing arbutus (the American mayflower) which tradition says was named by the pilgrims after their ship).

The Pilgrim tercentenary stamps are valid for all postage purposes and for registry, airplane and special delivery service when used in accordance with regulations relating thereto.

The stamps will be issued in sheets of 70.

The American Post Office has already made requisition for a supply of these stamps which will be obtainable at the stamp window immediately upon arrival.

Death Penalty Asked At Close Of Furbush Hearing

compradore who supplied the El Dorado with liquors was called later in the day.

District Attorney Holcomb opened for the Government reciting the circumstances of the shooting and detailing the movements of the prisoner from the time he left the ship until he arrived at the El Dorado.

REVIEWS TESTIMONY

He then reviewed the testimony of the different witnesses for the prosecution and argued that Furbush knew what he was doing up to the time when he fired the fatal shot and quoted what various witnesses had said as to his condition on the night of the tragedy. He contended that Furbush knew what he was doing when he changed the pistol from one pocket to another for convenient use in his left hand.

He argued from the depositions of his shipmates and letters of recommendation that Furbush could not have been addicted to alcohol and suffering from alcoholic insanity which might have made him incapable of understanding what he was doing.

"If the Court pleases I think the whole case rests on what the Court as a jury believes was the accused's condition when that shot was fired. Whether he was so drunk as not to know the consequences of his own act and at the same time so drunk that he did not know what he was doing, if your honor is convinced of that I believe that he should be convicted of murder in the second degree.

"If your honor believes that he had the least bit of knowledge of what he was doing, the very least bit, the least intelligence left to know what he was doing, and certainly from all the circumstances surrounding the crime it would appear to me—and I am sure it will to Your Honor—that he did know what he was doing, that he went into that cafe with a gun. He came into this harmless, peaceful town with a gun knowing he had no right to carry a gun. He went up there and started a disturbance. He told one man that he had this gun and that he knew how to use it and in a little while he demonstrated his capacity to use it. Now if the Court please during that time he had trouble in his heart, murder in his heart, for he did murder.

"If it was only for a moment and he knew what he was doing then it was malice aforethought. While he was pulling that gun out of his pocket, from the time his face "changed" as Hazelton's dying statement asserts, until he put his hand in his pocket and pulled that gun out, was a sufficent interval of time if he did not want to kill his friend. Malice does not have to exist as Your Honor well knows but for a second. And here he was intoxicated and if he knew what he was doing I say he was guilty in the manner and form as he stands informed against and that he is guilty of murder in the first degree."

OPENS ARGUMENT

Mr. Hartigan, Associate Counsel for the defense opened the argument on behalf of Furbush as follows:

"Your Honor what has been most forcibly impressed upon us during this trial by the evidence adduced is the complete absence of motive for the offense charged. We find no satisfactory proof in the testimony establishing beyond a reasonable doubt elements of the alleged offense which would bring the defendant's act within the statutory limits of the crime of which he was accused. At this point may I direct your honor's notice to Section 273 of the Federal Penal Code which I believe is the statute under which Mr. Furbush is charged. Reading Section 273:

"Murder is the unlawful killing of a human being with malice aforethought. Every murder perpetrated by poison, lying in wait, or any other kind of wilful, deliberate malicious and premeditated killing or committed in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate any arson, rape, burglary or robbery, or perpetrated from a premeditated design unlawfully, maliciously to affect the death of any human being other than he who is killed, is murder in the first degree. Any other murder is murder in the second degree."

"Now as to malice aforethought. As your Honor well knows the rule is established by the United States Supreme Court.

"Malice in connection with a crime of killing is but another name for a certain condition of a man's mind or heart. And as no one can look into the heart or mind, the only way to decide upon its condition at the time of killing is to infer it from certain facts," and that inference is one of fact for a jury or this Honorable Court. Now it is unquestionably a fact that the mind of accused has been shown to have been disturbed, inflamed or deranged by liquor at the time of the offense.

URGES NO MALICE

"The evidence indisputably shows this. As to this most important element of malice aforethought therefore we must earnestly submit there could not have been such and the act would not have been wilful, deliberate and premeditated as there was neither malice nor motive.

"As is well known Mr. Furbush had never met the deceased before that night. They had been sitting together quietly a very few minutes before the shooting and deceased assisted the accused to the cloak room and had befriended him earlier in the evening. Moreover, there was no provocation by deceased. Quite to the contrary.

"There is abundant truth of the kindly behavior of deceased toward the accused. Again we reiterate what possible motive could there be for a man in his normal mind to take umbrage at these acts of good faith. Your Honor, it is impossible to reason that the accused unless the victim of hallucinations or mania or insanity could have in cold blood taken the life of his benefactor. People do not kill without a purpose and Mr. Furbush had been kindly treated by deceased. He had no normal reason to shoot and I submit that he could not have been in his right mind.

"May we also mention in this connection that there is undisputed proof that Mr. Furbush had suffered an injury to his head very near his right temple that he was in a dazed and lethargic condition both at the time of the shooting and for some time afterwards at the police station. His companion, Quinn, was said by witnesses to act like a mad man and neither he nor Mr. Furbush remembered anything of the matter after their last drink and did not until the following morning after hours of sleep."

MAKES STRONG PLEA

Mr. Hartigan then quoted from certain works on Medical Jurisprudence and closed his argument with a strong plea for leniency in view of defendant's previous good character.

Mr. Heen began his argument by stating that although this case had received wide attention in Shanghai he knew that the mind of the Court would not be prejudiced by the recent similar occurrences. The defendant had sought to repel the charge by showing that at the time of the shooting the prisoner suffered mental abberation brought about by one, two or three possible as well as probable causes, one intoxication by drinking ordinary liquor, second the possibility of the system having been poisoned by inferior drink and it was very difficult to prove anything in regard to the latter as the accused could hardly be expected to find the ingredient that caused him to lose his mind.

The third possible cause was the effect of a blow on his head just over the right eye. Mr. Heen commented on the evidence supporting these theories. On the question of insanity or mental abberation, the primary issue was what was the state of the mind of the prisoner at the time of the shooting and the only way to judge of the mind was by the actions and that several witnesses had testified that Furbush acted as if he were dazed, sat all huddled up in his chair and did not act like a man who knew what he was doing.

Mr. Heen then argued that probabilities point toward Furbush having received a blow on the head which temporarily deprived him of his reason, and closed his argument with an appeal to the Court for leniency.

HOLCOMB REPLIES

Major Holcomb replied as follows: "Now if the Court pleases it seems to me in this case that all testimony that has been given here by various people points to only one end and that is the crime of murder was committed. The accused has been, if the story is true, accused of a lapse of memory or mind. Unfortunately there was not a lapse enough in his mind to prevent him from committing this act. He certainly killed Hazelton, shot him down with malice aforethought.

"I believe the Court is convinced of that. I believe everybody in this room who has heard the whole case believes it. As much as I regret to ask, I must ask for the extreme penalty as I believe that the accused is guilty of murder in the first degree. Our congress has said that in the case of murder in the first degree the punishment is death. The accused struck down and killed Hazelton who had a right to live, who had a right to live until he had been called to his Father by natural causes. It is not vengeance that is wanted by the Government nor by any citizen of this city, but that the majesty of the Law might be upheld. I ask your Honor to convict him of murder in the first degree with sentence of death."

With the Court's permission a Chinese compradore was allowed to testify on the question of the character of liquors sold to the El Dorado. Wong Chi-chong, wine and spirit dealer, Avenue Edward VII, testified that he sold gin, whiskey, brandy and some liqueurs to the El Dorado, "proper drinks."

Indo-China Riches Told By Governor

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Jan. 19.—M. Maurice Long, Governor-General of Indo-China, was on Monday entertained at dinner by the Renaissance Club. The company included many leading Parliamentarians.

In the course of a speech, M. Long dwelt on the natural riches of Indo-China. Among the raw materials which it produced in abundance, were, he said, rice, cotton, tea, silk and sugar, and all that was needed to reap the advantage of these riches was a spirit of initiative and direction.

He regarded the future with confidence, and hoped and believed that there was an era of prosperity in store, provided there was close co-operation between native and French interests.

Britons Are Urged To Promote More Schools In China

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 20.—Mr. F. Anderson, President of the China Association, has been interviewed by the Daily Mail in connection with the reported proposal to establish a Franco-Chinese commercial school at Shanghai. He emphasised the need of Great Britain's contributing to the encouragement of Young China and instanced the activities of the United States, Japan and France.

In his connection, the Daily Mail in a leader points out that Great Britain is searching for foreign markets and neglecting China who, with a wise policy on our part, could import far more than the 42 or 44 million pounds worth of goods which she purchased from the British Empire previous to the war.

It also criticises the inaction of the Government with regard to the recent scheme of the China Association for increasing the number of Chinese students in Great Britain.

Churchill Has Big Opportunity In New Official Position

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 20.—Emphasising the growing importance of Imperial matters, the Times suggests the titles "Imperial Office," and "Secretary of State for Imperial Affairs" for the Colonial Office and Mr. Churchill. It says that if his heart is right the Dominions will prefer Mr. Churchill, with his impetuousity and energy, to the type of British politician who cannot mention the Empire without lapsing into prosiness and platitude.

The future status of the Colonial Office, it continues, depends on Mr. Churchill. If he shows conspicuous fitness for the post of British Minister to the Dominions, the Dominion Premiers at their next meeting may be content to let well alone, but if the latter show a preference for having Dominion affairs removed from the scope of the Colonial Office there is no doubt that that will be done.

In any case, Mr. Churchill's work will, it adds, be of great importance. Egypt offers him the difficult task of following Lord Milner's example of self-control and insight, and moreover he might devote his whole energies for years to revision of the constitutional administration of commercial relations between Great Britain and the Crown Colonies and lesser dependencies.

Chinese Are Charged With Stamp Forgery

Two Chinese were brought into the Mixed Court yesterday on a charge of forging postage stamps. One of the men, who claims to be a broker, has been under observation by the police for some time. He was arrested Wednesday in a lodging house on Foochow Road and a number of forged stamps and some forging implements were seized.

After evidence of arrest had been given Detective Sergeant Kilkenny asked for a remand in order that further investigations may be made. The case was remanded for one week.

Japan Education System For Korea

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, (by mail).—The following is the fundamental policy for Korean education, as published by the Government-General of the Peninsula, according to the Chuo;

(1). The Japanese educational system will be adopted in Korea, as far as possible, as a general principle.

(2). Steps will be taken so as to bring Japanese and Korean schools into closer communication with each other.

(3). Korean aspirations for school education will be duly respected, and steps will be taken to satisfy such aspirations as far as possible.

(4). When circumstances of localities demand, Koreans may be educated separately from the Japanese, but the spirit of indiscrimination will be carried into every detail under all circumstances.

The Chuo adds that the above are resolutions considered and passed by the Korean Educational Investigation Commission, appointed for the purpose by the Government-General.

Murder Of Irish Policeman Described

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 19.—The manner in which unfortunate policemen in Ireland are being brutally murdered is graphically shown in an official story from Dublin relating to the death of a policeman named Boyd.

It appears that Boyd was sitting in a village inn, quietly drinking a glass of beer and talking to two women, when suddenly four shots rang out, killing him instantly, smashing the glass of beer to atoms, and wounding one woman in the leg. Nobody saw the murderers who escaped.

As the result of this murder and other attacks on the police, all fairs, markets and public assemblies in various districts of County Tipperary have been forbidden.

All Classes Greet Duke Of Connaught On Madras Visit

(Reuter's Service)

Madras, Jan. 16, (delayed).—The Duke of Connaught left last night by special train for Nagpur, where he will enjoy a short respite before resuming his official activities.

Yesterday afternoon he attended the races, driving to the course in state. The largest crowd on record for Madras assembled and a pleasant afternoon's racing of six events was enjoyed. The Duke was loudly cheered both on arriving and departing.

In the evening, His Royal Highness attended a reception given by the Madras Landowners' Association. There was a distinguished gathering comprising both British and Indian elements. The proceedings terminated in a brilliant display of fireworks.

The Duke's visit to Madras, though partly spoiled by the rain which fell earlier in the week, has undoubtedly been highly successful, and the welcome which he received from all classes has been exceedingly hearty. Whenever he drove, even by motor, large numbers of spectators assembled to see the King-Emperor's representative.

COULON STARTS PARIS PLAYING HIS NEW GAME

Resisting Strong Weight Lifters Is Popular Sport In French Capital

RIVAL BOXER HAS NEW ONE

He Also Puzzles The Doctors In Lifting Prostrate Men, Using Finger Tips Only

Here's a hummer for local men who believe they are strong and husky, who think that they can lift heavy weights. Try it once or twice and you will find that the strongest man can not lift the smallest child—if the kiddie gets the secret.

All the young and strong in Paris are today playing the Johnny Coulon game, and discipline in every office is being wrecked by experiments in lifting the youngest office boy. There is likely to be no more popular parlor game, and Johnny Coulon has successfully turned men's minds everywhere from political speculation at the festive season to experiment and argument as to how it is that a man's strength can be short-circuited by another who places his finger tips on his neck and wrist.

Johnny had a hard day giving experiments before a group of doctors who are trying to solve the why and wherefore of his discovery. Among them are men like Charles Richet, former Nobel Prizeman for medicine, who has had Coulon in his laboratory and examined his performance with scientific care. Among those whom the doctors got to try to lift the little boxer was Cadine, weightlifting champion of the last Olympic games.

CHAMPION POWERLESS

When Johnny submitted, Cadine picked him up and held him above his head, but when he placed the fingers of his right hand lightly on the other's neck just below the corners of the jawbone, and the fingers of his left hand on Cadine's wrist, the champion struggled in vain to get his great muscles to work. He seemed as powerless as if he had been bound with ropes instead of with the light touch of the boxer.

The doctors have come to three conclusions about the phenomenon. First, that there is no kind of trickery about it; second, that there is no trace of psychic suggestion between one man and the other; third, that the phenomenon produced does not consist in any increase in weight of the "subject," but in diminution of the muscular strength of the lifter.

One of the most extraordinary features discovered by Dr. Richet was that the diminution in muscular force was greater in proportion to the strength of the man making the test. That is to say, the stronger the lifting force the man has, the more easily he is resisted by the short circuit action which Coulon has discovered.

OTHERS PERFORM THE TRICK

One experiment made by Dr. Richet showed that if other people than Johnny himself put their fingers on the neck and wrist of the lifter he was just as powerless as when Johnny did so. Other people who have tried the experiment have found that it works with them in the same way as with the boxer, provided they succeeded in getting their finger tips on the proper spots. These spots seem to be on the surface of nerve centers correlated in some way.

There are many curious features of the whole business, however. In one experiment with a boy it was found that while one man succeeded in getting him off the ground no matter what he did, any other man found the weight almost too much for him, though he be far the stronger of the two.

For those who wish to try the experiment it should be mentioned that the two spots, which need only be lightly touched, are just below and behind the corner of the jawbone and just above the wrist joint of the arm.

ANOTHER PUZZLE

Johnny has had so much success with his discovery that another boxer, Maurice Lefever, has introduced another weight-lifting puzzle for the scientific and holiday-making world. His game is this: A man is laid on his back on a table and two others on each side try to lift him with the index fingers of their hands, placed below shoulders and knees. The subjects selected should be above the ordinary strength. Then the game begins. Each lifter takes a deep breath and, keeping the fingers in position, blows in below the body on the table in a long rhythmic blow, which should begin at the shoulders and go down toward the feet. This has to be done twenty times. At the twentieth time the two lifters exert themselves together and the body, which they couldn't raise before, is picked up with extraordinary ease and can be kept in the air for five or six seconds.

One doctor before whom the experiment was shown declared that probably the twenty breaths produces an exactly synchronised energy. But a curious thing is that the experiment doesn't succeed with inanimate objects.

UNDEFEATED "Y" QUINTET PLAYS PUBLIC SCHOOL

Chinese Y.M.C.A. Basketball Team Will Meet Charley Glauque et al Tonight

The undefeated Chinese Y. M. C. A. basketball team will play the Shanghai Public School quintet tonight at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and the game will attract a big crowd as Charley Glauque will head the S. P. S. attack.

The school team is playing good basketball in the Foreign League.

Local Boxing Club Membership Forms Are Now Available

Memberships forms are now available for the recently proposed Shanghai Boxing Club and may be secured from Mr. G. H. Parkes, boxing instructor of the Public School for Boys, North Szechuen Road. There are to be both active and passive memberships and the promotors hope that there will be an especially large number of the former in order to insure a healthy support for the organisation. The fee in either case is ten dollars per year.

The object of the club, as stated by its organisers is to stimulate and encourage boxing by the promotion and allocation of local championships and by holding amateur competitions from time to time.

It is planned to have a Junior section open to boys of the European and American schools.

S. R. A. Shooting

The monthly competition of the Shanghai Rifle Association and the Benevolent Fund shoot will be held at the range today from 6 to 9 a.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m.

Colgate And Princeton Resume Grid Relations

Colgate is to resume football relations with Princeton next season. The two teams will meet in the third game of the season for each on Saturday, October 8, 1921, at Princeton, N. J. Two easy games will precede the Princeton conflict on the Maroon schedule, it is stated today, by Graduate-Manager William A. Ried. Colgate will not meet Yale again next season. The annual games with Cornell, Rochester and Syracuse will be played.

Cornell and Syracuse will be played at Ithaca and Syracuse respectively, but the other games are very much in doubt. One thing, however, is certain, Hamilton College will not be met in 1921.

Finding The Right Clubs Is Difficult And Vital Factor Of The Game

Expert Tells Of Points To Be Observed When Making The Selection

BY ABE MITCHELL

There is a good deal of luck in getting together a good bag of clubs. I do not mean to suggest that there is any difficulty in obtaining articles of the highest workmanship but one man's meat is another's poison as it were and the finest club that ever came out of a shop may be valueless if it falls in the wrong hands.

It often seems to me that the amateur is too haphazard in his choice of a club. He takes one from the rack in the professional's shop and he likes it or not according to the balance and feel. Both of these are important matters but many players neglect one that is more important still. The chief thing in a club is the lie and inasmuch as there are comparatively few who have the same stance—one is more upright than another and one holds his hands higher than another—it follows that we all need clubs which rest on the ground at varying angles. To be suitable a club must lie flat on its sole; the toe must not be cocked up nor the heel raised. If there is either of these defects the player is undoubtedly handicapping himself. For what is bound to happen? If the toe is raised the club is either likely to slide over or dig into the turf at the moment of impact, and if the heel is raised the toe will probably be turned off the correct line on going through.

FANCY OFTEN RULES

The other day a player came into my shop and picked up a driver and after playing two or three imaginary shots with it he asked the price of it. I told him that it had been specially made to order and that I could not sell it. Would I not let him have it and make another for my client? he asked. I suggested that it would be better to make him a copy of it but he would not agree to this. Then I happened to notice how the club lay on the ground when he held it as if he were about to address the ball. It was resting on the edge of the heel with the toe pointing to the sky. At once I told him that a club built on those lines was no good to him and that if he bought it he would not play with it for more than a round. But even when I had pointed out the defect he still insisted that it was a beautiful club and that he would like to have it.

This is the time of year when it is good to overhaul one's collection of clubs and I suggest that every amateur would be wise to examine the lie of each to see that it suits his style of address. I imagine that many will find defects which I have mentioned. If this is so it does not mean that the clubs will have to be discarded. In the case of irons your professional will easily rectify them and by a little judicious planing the lie of even a driver can be altered.

REPAIRING DIFFICULT

Clubs are curious things. If you should be unlucky enough to break the shaft of a favorite you will be just as lucky if the new shaft matches the original one. Even the most expert professional cannot truthfully say how a shaft is going to turn out when he is trying to restore a broken club to its old state. There may be a difference in either feel or balance, or in both. If he works to get the balance correct then the chances are that the feel will be different. On the other hand if the feel is right the balance may be a little out. Every professional has this difficulty and in the end the player usually has to buy a new club. Woods all vary in weight and even the head of a driver varies in feel when it has a bit more lead in it than a club of exactly similar pattern. A clubhead all ready to receive the lead may weigh, say, five ounces. Another may weigh half an ounce less, but if these two heads are brought up to say seven ounces by the addition of lead then one head must have an extra half ounce of lead in it. That extra lead would give to the head quite a different feel when it is shafted and where one shaft to be used the head with the extra lead in it would feel appreciably the heavier in the hands of most players. It is, of course, an illusion or a fancy but all golfers are fanciful and it is difficult to please them without pandering to their whims.

THE QUESTION OF FEEL

Golfers will understand when I write of the feel of a club. To many, of course, it probably conveys nothing as to them all clubs are alike. On the other hand a good golfer with a sensitive touch is always trying to discover the club with this good feel. Cricketers have this same idea with regard to their bats and I have no doubt that lawn tennis players are always trying to lay hands on a raquet which is well balanced and is nice to the grip. It is largely on this account that all golfers have a favorite club in their bag. It seems to give a specially happy response to one's efforts. But why this should be so is not certain. It may be an old iron or jigger or preferably an old spoon which no other member of the club would own in his collection.

GOOD SHAFTS RARE

You often take a great liking to another player's club and that is the way in which many which suit your fanciful ideas are found. It is curious how when you try another golfer's club you hit a good shot with it. It is then that you want it. Many a club has changed hands in these circumstances. But as soon as it is yours it seems to lose its virtue; it is as if it resented the change of ownership. A good shaft is a rare friend, particularly in these days when one is worth a heap of money. From the point of view of quality the shafts we are obtaining today are not, on the average, to be compared with those of pre-war days. There are more flaws and the choice is greatly reduced. I look back on one shaft which I had for many years with happy recollections and regret that I have never been able to find one to equal it. After I came back from France I lost my whole set of clubs. They disappeared without trace, but where-ever it may be, if I come across that old favorite shaft I shall recognise it. It was in my driver which was made for me in my amateur days by John Rowe at Ashdown Forest. I do not think I have driven so well since I lost that club.

PROMOTERS DENY CHAMPIONSHIP GO IS DEFINITELY OFF

May Decide, However, To Hold Dempsey-Carpentier Bout Outside States

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Jan. 19.—Messrs. Jack Kearns and Tex Rickard, the promoters of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, deny that the match has definitely been declared off.

They are of opinion that it may be necessary to stage the fight outside the United States, owing to the proposal of the Boxing Commission to limit the charge for admission to $15. The date, July 2, which has been fixed, however, stands.

London, Jan. 19.—Mr. C. B. Cochran states that if it is true that the Carpentier-Dempsey match in America has been abandoned, he is prepared to give a purse of £100,000 for the men to box in England in June.

TEETHING WITHOUT TEARS

A NEW LIGHT ON BABY-REARING

It is a recognised fact that Babies—and in fact all Children—need medicines of their own, and that most baby-medicines do more harm in the long run than good. Also great mistakes are often made in measuring doses for tiny patients. Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian medicine for Children of all ages, meet every difficulty. They are guaranteed to be absolutely harmless and free from opiates. They are so soft that they fall into powder at very slight pressure, forming an ideal dose for Infants.

Baby's Own Tablets are pleasant to the taste; slightly laxative, comforting and digestive—a specific for feverishness, constipation, diarrhoea and worms. At the time of teething they act like magic, giving painless sleep and easy teething.

Obtainable from chemists, also at 60 cents the vial, post free, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

GRAIN IS SHIPPED

Shipment of the third allotment of grain which is being purchased for delivery at Paotingfu, Shuntefu, Shih Chia Chwang and Hantan, the principal distributing centers maintained by the Peking United International Famine Relief Committee, was started for those points Monday. This is the third allotment of 100 tons or more to go into the interior and the shipments are to be continued until the entire purchase of 3,000 tons is distributed.

Morgan Palmer of the Salt Gabelle, who has given his time to the Committee's relief work, was authorised to purchase 3,000 tons of kaoliang and small millet for the West Chihli field. He bought 1,000 tons along the Peking-Kalgan line, made a similar purchase in Manchuria, while the third 1,000 tons he purchased locally. The grain is being shipped in allotments of 100 tons or a little more, five cars being required for each shipment.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT

The Minister of Communications has established a special department to deal with famine relief matters and Mr. Morgan said prompt action had been taken in getting cars for the shipments and in getting passes for relief workers. Cars are usually obtained in a day or two.

Success is also attending the shipment out of Manchuria, the Y. M. C. A. and relief societies there having shipped ten cars of grain to Ting Hsien, the time in transit being but four days. Mr. Morgan feels that the shipments are receiving prompt attention.

PREVENTING TYPHUS

Preliminary to an energetic campaign to prevent typhus epidemics in famine areas, a corps of medical experts associated with the Peking Committee, has begun a technical survey of the West Chihli area to learn the dangers and find the best means of thwarting them.

The tour of the field follows a conference at Union Medical College where Dr. Howard G. Barrie, formerly engaged in the anti-typhus campaign in Serbia; Dr. Daniel E. Ford, recently from Vladivostok, and Dr. W. W. Peter of the China Public Health Service reviewed conditions and methods with Dr. S. P. Chuan, President of the Army Medical College and Dr. C. W. Young of the China Medical Board.

All these men are experienced in fighting large epidemics and the object of the conference was to determine the best means of saving the famine districts. Drs. Barrie and Peter began their survey on Sunday. Drs. Barrie, Peter and Ford made up a temporary commission named by the Council on Health Education and the Peking United International Committee, to investigate conditions in the Tsinanfu, Techow and Tientsin districts and their recommendations were discussed.

DELOUSING METHOD

They recommended that the delousing method that will effectually protect the greatest number in the briefest period should be adopted and they declared also that the large refugee centers such as the camp at Tientsin will require special expert care to prevent the outbreak of typhus. Where large numbers live under crowded conditions and are idle there is a special menace, they said, and these centers must be watched carefully just before breaking up in the spring to prevent the disease from being carried to the remoter places.

While the more elaborate delousers can be used in or near railroad towns where fuel is easily obtained, the interior towns must have a simpler and more easily established method, Dr. Barrie believed. He told how the typhus epidemic was checked in Serbia, where housing conditions and emergency facilities were no better than they are in the China famine districts today.

He advocated temporary equipment for bathing the people of menaced towns and advocated the kerosene method of delousing clothing and protecting bodies, as the most rapid and effectual for remote places.

THE TREATMENT

Under this system, the person exposed to the disease is bathed and in the meantime his clothing is treated with pure kerosene to kill the lice. Before treatment the clothing is put through two brushing processes and before they are donned again the subject is sprayed from head to foot with the kerosene. Ample protection is taken to prevent the lice from getting back on the cleaned clothes. The unbathed and untreated persons are not allowed in the cleansed portion of the camp nor are the treated persons allowed in the uncleansed parts.

The "food whip" was considered a valuable aid in getting people to protect themselves in the relief distributing district but the problems will be encountered in the outer places where there are no relief committees to supervise the delousing process.

STAMP AUCTION MONDAY

An auction for the benefit of the Famine Relief Fund will be held tomorrow afternoon and Monday, January 24, under the auspices of the Shanghai Philatelic Society.

All stamp collectors are urged to attend the auctions and secure some valuable stamps and at the same time swell the famine relief fund.

Messrs. L. Moore and Co., Ltd. have agreed to conduct the auction free of charge, charges for printing have been reduced by half and each of the 12 contributors will donate five percent of their net receipts to the fund.

Famine relief organisations, entitled to representation on the finance commission for the $4,000,000 Customs Surtax loan, are this week conducting elections to choose the undesignated members of that body.

TERMS OF LOAN

The terms of the loan provide for the commission which will supervise the distribution and administration of the fund. Some of the commissioners were designated in the agreement and others are to be chosen by the relief bodies.

Foreign representation on the commission will consist of the foreign treasurer of the Peking United International Famine Relief Committee, the chairman of the investigation committee of that body, a representative of the American Red Cross Society, and one representative each to be elected from the North China International Society for Famine Relief of Tientsin, the Chinese-Foreign Relief Society of Shanghai and the Peking United International Famine Relief Committee.

The Chinese membership includes the Chinese treasurer of the Peking United International Relief Committee, one representative of the Government Relief Bureau, one representative of Chihli designated as Vice Minister of Communications, Hsu Shih-chang, and a representative each to be elected by the International Relief Committees of Shantung, Honan and Shansi.

The National Loan of the Third Year of the Republic of China (1914) $16,000,000 and Supplementary Issue of $8,000,000
and
The National Loan of the Fourth Year of the Republic of China (1915) $24,000,000

On the 6th June, 1917, the undersigned notified subscribers to the above two loans that in pursuance of arrangements made with the Chinese Government, the loan service as regards interest payments would in future be adequately secured.

In regard to the redemption of the loans it was impossible at the time to make any announcement. The Moratorium of 1916 affected the Loan Service, and, although drawings have been proceeded with as funds permitted, Redemption has been irregular and behind the scheduled dates.

Arrangements have now been made which will enable annual drawings of each loan to be undertaken until their extinction, in 1924 in the case of the 4th Year Loan and 1925 in the case of the 3rd Year Loan.

The Ministry of Finance will notify in due course the date of the drawings to take place this year with date and place of repayment.

Business and Official Notices

NOTICE

Butcheries both in the International and French Settlements hereby jointly notify the Public:

Shanghai Butchers usually purchase sheep and calves from the interior of China. In consequence of the recent famine and the high cost of food prices, labour and farm hands in the interior, the raising of cattle and sheep has become difficult, and therefore the supply of meat has decreased in comparision with that of previous years. The price of meat has risen to a much higher price above normal, say, an increase of about 5 to 6 cents per pound.

In spite of the difficulty and high cost of transportation of animals from the interior, and the high price of rice and other foods, Shanghai Butchers sell meat to their customers as cheaply as possible, with the intention of retaining their good connection with customers.

A meeting has been held by all Shanghai Butchers and a resolution passed that an increase or certain prices per pound shall be made on cash sales as well as contracted transactions.

We wish the public to understand that the increase in prices was decided upon only after the most careful consideration and only for necessity's sake.

The following Butchers in the International Settlement will come under the above resolution:

Yue-Shing, The Oxford Butchery, Cosmopolitan, Wei-Zee, Zang-Zoong, Teh-Fong, Yung-Foong, The Hanbury, The Shanghai Butchers, Yun-Kee, Foh-Loong, Zung-Zoong, Ziang-Kee, San-Mow, Yuen-Cheong, Woo-Mei, Yue-Woo, Yao-Tsing-Kee, Zee-Ah-Dé, Tsen-Kee, Hop-Shing, Dong-Hing, Yah-Foong, North-Hong-Kee, Tsen-Tai, Yung-Tai-Foh, The Asia, San-Tai, and Shing-Mow.

The following Butchers in the French Settlement will come under the above resolution:

Zung-Shing-Kun-Kee, Yung-Sin, San-Woo, Zung-Shing-Hop Kee, Yung-Shing-Pau, Hong-Kee, and Dong-Hing.

Shanghai, 21st January, 1921.

FINAL ANNOUNCEMENT

of the
Tsin Dah (晉大莊)
and
Wei Dah (會大莊) Banks

The above-mentioned banks have duly paid all accounts due by them by allotment and instalment. Several creditors, however, who should have claimed have not done so. We advertised in the fourth, eighth and ninth moons, in the Shun Pao, Sin Wan Pao, North China Daily News and in this paper, inviting the creditors to draw payment not later than the end of the ninth moon, otherwise they would lose their power to claim, and the funds would be turned over for benevolent purposes. Our liquidating office has been established for years, and, as the end of the Chinese year is approaching, we have abolished it without further waiting, and the funds unclaimed by the creditors have been donated to benevolent causes in accordance with our previous meeting, in order that the matter may be concluded finally. All notes and pass books remaining in the possession of Chinese or foreigners, are hereby declared to be null and void, and the public is hereby requested to note this final declaration.

AUTO MUFF IS LATEST

An "automobile muff" has been invented to keep the hands of the motorist warm while driving in cold weather. Securely fastened to the steering wheel is a light but rigid framework of steel over which the muff of padded cloth or fur is fitted. The arrangement is such that the person driving can operate the wheel with ease.

OHIO LEADS IN AUTOS

Every state except Montana has a larger number of automobile registrations than on July 1, 1919, the largest gain being in Ohio, which shows a gain of 102,174. Ohio is first in total registrations, having 567,000 cars and trucks registered.

The News From Tsingtao

IN recent weeks THE CHINA PRESS has published stories received from various correspondents which acquainted readers with the rites and tenets of a new religion which the Japanese government was attempting to impose on the Koreans.

A Korean has been chosen as the founder of this new belief, which the Japanese hold to be good enough for the Koreans but not good enough for themselves. The religious title adopted for the founder is "Boundless Helper of the World" and from the standpoint of the oppressed Koreans a better title could not have been selected, for if there is any country in the world whose condition cries aloud for the beneficent ministrations of a boundless helper that country is Korea.

The original Boundless Helper by the way was executed by the Emperor of Korea long years ago, but he is held by the Japanese to be again alive, and for the third time, in the body of another who goes by the name of Kin Yu-yung and who is in high favor with the Japanese because they think he provides a temptation to the Korean Christians!

But now what are we to expect at Tsingtac? What sort of religion are the Japanese planning to invent for that devoted community? They have fixed upon one for Korea while retaining a number of others for themselves. And while burning Christians in Korea they were only a month or two ago giving royal entertainment to a great international Christian society in Tokio. They are great jugglers, these Japanese.

But let us to the news from Tsingtao. Our Peking correspondent wired us the important and exclusive information published in yesterday's issue, that "Rights of American missionaries at Tsingtao to propagate the Christian faith have been brought into question by the Japanese authorities there who have addressed an inquiry to the American consular authorities concerning the nature of guarantees that were given by the Germans when the port was under their control."

The Japanese authorities further expressed the wish to examine any such document if existent. The request was interpreted in Tsingtao as indicative of the hidden Japanese policy towards Christianity and particularly towards American missions.

"Specifically," says our correspondent, "the inquiry asks if the former German leaseholders gave any written guarantees conveying privilege of residence to persons engaged in spreading the Christian faith in the Tsingtao district."

He further indicates that the reply of the American authorities will be that the Germans made the right of spreading Christianity paramount among treaty rights in that area.

There the matter must rest for the moment. But what is to be made out of the request for this information? Are the Japanese planning to evict the Christian missionaries from Tsingtao and Shantung, merely, or are they laying the foundations of a general war on Christianity, hoping in that way to beguile the Chinese into helping them out of their present difficulties, and at the same time subjecting the Chinese to their rule?

WINSOME WINNIE

Winston Churchill to be Colonial Secretary—News Item.

O! What a happy land is England,
Hated by all nations near and far,
Though of Gladstone we're bereft,
We've got Winston Churchill left,
O! what a happy land we are.

So sang a well known comedian many years ago in one of the Drury Lane pantomimes, when Winston was just starting out on his political career. One of our morning contemporaries refers to him as the "Man of many parts," which calls to mind the squib chortled about during the first years of the war "What is Winston's job today?"

He has certainly filled in his comparatively short life as large a variety of big positions as any statesman living. It was "Punch," once upon a time that called him "The Bottom Of Politics." Bottom, Shakespeare's delightful character, would play every part in the play if the other characters would let him. "Let me play the lion too, I'll roar that it will do any man's heart good to hear me roar. . . . I'll roar you as gently as any sucking dove."

There's no part in the State too big for Winston to tackle. He is hated and loved. He is often hated by the people that love him. It is crowd psychology that gives a person cheers one instant and hisses the next. But Winston seems to care little for the praise or blame of the public. He has his job to do and does it. He came into politics as one thing, and cheerfully bounded from one side of the 'House' to the other when he found better work for his abilities. Seldom has a man been so be-rhymed from the footlights. Every cheap comedian has had his little joke to put over. He was fairly certain to get a laugh. And Why? Winston Churchill is a dynamic character. When more immediate favorites have disappeared from memory, Winston's name will be pretty surely found in History.

His father, Lord Randolph Churchill, set out with the idea of converting the working man into a Tory Democrat. He was not able to complete his work. Winston is still learning and living—and therefore changing.

What a number of mistakes he has made! And still he is holding the greatest positions that a government has to offer. But from every mistake it isn't the wriggling out that has kept him prominent, it is the fact that from each mistake he has learned something wherewith to combat another difficulty.

* * *

"Winston's Winsome Waacs" was one of the names given to Queen Mary's Women's Auxiliary Corps because he saw the value of woman's work when others were still bothering their heads as to whether Women should have the vote. What Winston said one day didn't matter the next. He was progressive. At times he confessed to "terminological inexactitudes" because they were convenient, and yet like every other British statesman he could and can be absolutely trusted to work always only for the public good.

And now if Reuter and Dame Rumor prove true he has the biggest of big jobs to tackle. The ground has been prepared for him to a great extent by the fine work of the Prince of Wales whose visits to Australia and Canada have done so much to weld the British Empire together.

But what difficulties are ahead! India, with its young men only educated up to the point of discontent; Australia with its labor troubles and its suspicion of certain islanders not so very far from our own doors; Canada with its splendid possibilities; South Africa with a population made up of at least two nationalities.

I have mentioned India in the general review although it is not in Winston's domain, because of its contribution to the future problem.

What will the versatile statesman do? What new mistakes will he make? What new triumphs win?

Winston Churchill, Colonial Secretary. Good! He'll risk things to win. He'll do his best to win. And so the words of the comedian years ago may turn out to have been more of a prophecy than a joke:

O! what a happy land is England
Favored by all nations near and far,
Though of Gladstone we're bereft
We've got Winston Churchill left,
O! What a happy land we are.

Wrangel's Defeat Sheds Light On Trotsky's 'Labor Army'

In the following article Capt. Francis McCullagh, writing from first hand facts, sets forth most vividly the manner in which Leon Trotsky, the Red Minister of War, personally sowed the seeds of Bolshevism in the territory where Gen. Wrangel's White army, as later events proved, was to meet crushing defeat. Capt. McCullagh's narrative is not only a trained observer's intensely interesting descriptive work, made timely by the recent defeat of Gen. Wrangel's forces, but it brings out in full the significance of Trotsky's "Red Labor Army" campaign, which was closely followed not by industrial advancement but by a military coup. His account of Trotsky's visit, which transformed Ekaterinburg into a gigantic propaganda hall, gives a new and astounding idea of what Red propaganda really means and shows again that chaos and misery ever go hand in hand with Communism.

By Capt. Francis McCullagh
(Correspondence of The New York Herald)

London, Nov. 25.—Trotsky, the leader of the Red armies, visited Ekaterinburg while I was there in order, as his purpose was given, to turn two or three of his armies into Red labor armies and to make his soldiers, in sight of all the world, beat their swords into ploughshares.

The last occasion on which he had visited the town he was a political convict, and he had gazed at it through the iron bars of a prison van. The foreign newspaper correspondents in Petrograd had indulged at that time in some wild prophecies, but none of these correspondents was mad enough to prophesy that a time would come when this Jewish convict would visit, as commander-in-chief of all the Russian armies, a Siberian town in which, after serving a long term of imprisonment as a political suspect, the Czar himself had met a violent death.

Ekaterinburg was gayly decorated in honor of Trotsky's visit, but the Bolshevist Minister of War came, unostentatiously enough, in the night time and refused to hold any parades, inspections of troops or any other formal functions whatsoever. He is a slight built, wiry man of medium height, dressed as a private soldier, and without any decoration. He wore a curious cap which has been invented for the higher officers of the Red army. It is of khaki cloth, is cut in the style of the steel helmet worn by the ancient Russian bogatyrs (knights), and the whole front of it is covered by a huge star, the red star of Bolshevism. His ill developed calves were encased in a pair of British army puttees, probably one of the many pairs which we had sent to Kolchak and which had travelled further west—with the nimble legs of deserters inside them.

AIDES WORK LIKE SLAVES

He wore no belt and carried no weapon; his face is sallow, Mephistophelian, and distinctly Jewish; his eye dark and bright; his beard and mustache scanty. His movements are quick and animated, and his capacity for work superhuman. The employes on his train told me that they led a dog's life of it. The typewriting girls were kept working all day and far into the night. His numerous secretaries were glued to their desks all day. His telephonists were speaking into the receivers or taking down telephone messages for twenty hours out of the twenty-four.

Their master had, it is true, made their work somewhat easier for them by ruthlessly cutting out all the polite phrases with which Russian telephone users under the old regime ushered in conversation. All superfluities were dropped. His business manners are not only brusque, they are brutal. This brutality may be necessary, however, for he has got an immense amount of work to attend to, and he has to deal with people who, though they are excessively polite—perhaps I should say because they are excessively polite—are as dilatory as well bred Turks.

There can be no denying the fact that in February last Trotsky was a busy man. He published on his train a newspaper, En Route, for which he wrote articles every day, and he dictated besides numerous contributions for the local papers in the towns through which he passed. This, of course, gave him an enormous "pull" especially as no able editor had the nerve to differ from him by a hair's breadth.

Trotsky delivered long public speeches several times a week, and spent at least six hours every day presiding over conferences of commissaries, railway officials, factory men, and even doctors. He had fitted to his train a wireless apparatus which kept him in constant communication with Moscow, and he received daily interminable messages about the eastern front, the southern front, the Polish front, the north-western and Finnish fronts, as well as copies of all the communications received from the British and other foreign Governments, not to speak of a vast amount of technical material sent by his own War Office.

He employed about a dozen secretaries, a tame editor to run his paper, a number of tame diplomatists to look after diplomatic affairs and several domesticated Czarist officers to deal with purely military matters. He put the fear of Trotsky if not the fear of God into all these subordinates; but they rather gloried than otherwise in their servitude. Most Russians like to serve a relentless master.

TAKES UP GREAT TASK

As if all this work were not enough, Trotsky devoted himself at Ekaterinburg to transport reorganisation, a task which would alone absorb the energies of a dozen Sir Eric Geddeses, and when Krassin went to England Trotsky calmly took over the Commissariat of Ways of Communication on the ground that as railways played such a great part in military operations he had better take charge of them as well as of the army. All this testifies to Trotsky's audacity and indefatigability, but it also betrays a fatal lack of organisers in the ranks of the Reds. And it is almost unnecessary to add, Government work is not well done.

Despite the electric thrill which the presence of the Red army Commissar communicates to every Government department which he enters there is a glut of work which clogs the whole machinery, and there are not enough experts to deal with that work. The offices are in a chaotic state, filled with visitors who cannot be attended to and with incompetent clerks rushing hither and thither. Many of the old bureaucrats are, it is true, dribbling back from Paris with their tails between their legs, but as they are distrusted and are always placed under incompetent Reds no really good work can be expected of them. There is nothing in the world which a ruling class dislikes so much as being placed on an equality with people whom they had been accustomed to regard with contempt as inferior beings.

The stories told of Trotsky's revels and dissipations are obvious nonsense. The only dissipation the Bolshevik War lord allowed himself was a short walk every day in a beautiful pine grove where I used to walk myself and an hour's hard physical exercise daily shovelling snow from the railway track. In this physical exercise he made every man, woman and child in his train take part; and the example he thus set was good, for, as I think I have already remarked, the educated Russian has the same contempt for manual labor as the white sahib has in India. Even Mrs. Trotsky, Master Trotsky (a boy of eleven or twelve) and Master Trotsky's governess, a young Jewess of twenty or twenty-five, had to shovel snow like the rest; and this craze for manual work remained even when Trotsky was not looking on.

FIGHTS TYPHUS

No sooner had he arrived in Ekaterinburg than Trotsky plunged straight into work, and I marvelled at the audacity with which he tackled matters which ought, one would think, to have been left entirely to experts. I shall give one example, the typhus question, for I know something about it, having had, a year earlier, to visit all the typhus hospitals in the Urals to interpret for Col. Clarke, the head of the Canadian medical service, whom Gen. Sir Alfred Knox had sent to the front with the object of doing something to stop the terrible wastage of men caused by typhus among Kolchak's troops. Dr. Clarke found most of the trouble to be due to the apathy of the Russian doctors, who would do nothing unless they were given unlimited quantities of unprocurable insecticides, though, as Dr. Clarke told them until he was hoarse and exhausted and finally caught the disease himself, heat would have served their purpose equally well.

On February 19 Trotsky summoned the D. M. S., listened in ominous calm to his statement that there was no chance of typhus decreasing in any case till the month of April, and then attacked him with a sudden burst of violence which nearly frightened that worthy but inefficient functionary out of his wits.

"I am no doctor," said the Bolshevik war lord, "but I know that typhus is communicated by lice. Now it would be possible to destroy these lice by delousing apparatus and by a certain degree of heat, which could, if necessary, be produced in some of our public baths. Several of the baths are very nearly hot enough for the purpose as it is; and even if the soldiers have not got a change of clothes they might wash in one part of the bathhouse while their clothes are being disinfected in another part. I am not a believer in this doctrine of fatalism that you preach. I will immediately appoint a committee to investigate this question, and if I find that you do not at once take some steps in the matter I will hand you over to the Extraordinary Commission. Good day."

Next day an excellent bathhouse was opened free at the railway station, and I myself enjoyed the first bath that I had had for three months. The committee was nevertheless appointed, and it published everything, even details of hospital mismanagement that were enough to make one's hair stand on end, for the Bolshevists, when it suits their purpose, allow the fullest liberty to the press.

The great propaganda engine which had raised the Red Army and smashed Kolchak and Denikin was then turned onto the louse, and all Ekaterinburg was soon placarded with posters preaching cleanliness and denouncing dirt. Some of them contained representations of a louse magnified to the size of a small cow, and pointed out, in the accompanying letterpress, as a worse enemy than the "Supreme Ruler." "Kill it," yelled the posters, "as you would kill Kolchak. It is a far more dangerous enemy. Kolchak has put to death thousands of Communists. It puts to death tens of thousands." The number and variety of these warnings were very great; and there was every kind of striking life size pictures in glaring colors to attract the attention of the illiterate, as well as good medical hints to impress those who could read.

PROPAGANDA PURPOSES

The same all-powerful engine of propagada is employed for other purposes—to teach Communism, to enlist support for the Red army, to foster a hatred of England, to excite a craze for education and to produce a contempt for priests and Christianity.

On the day after his arrival Trotsky addressed a large Communist meeting; and here I might remark that no such thing as a public meeting in our sense of the word is ever held in Red Russia. The Bolshevik leaders only address meetings which have been carefully packed with their supporters, and I know of only one case in which it was announced beforehand that they were going to speak. It is impossible for any one who is not a Bolshevist to find out when Lenin is going to speak in Moscow, the reason being simply fear of assassination, and it is next to impossible for a non-Bolshevik to hear him. Trotsky, who is a consummate orator, made a very able speech, of which the keynote was briefly this:

"We have defeated Kolchak, but a much more serious enemy remains, namely, the ruined economic system of the country. To put that right we must work harder than men ever worked before since history began. Sixty percent of our railway locomotives are out of action, and if they continue breaking down at the same rate we shall have 99 percent out of action within three months, which means a total breakdown of our transport system, and therefore of our system of government. These engines must be repaired. The men who repair them must have food and fuel. The railway lines must be cleared of snow. Wood must be cut and brought to the railways. The Ural factories must be started. This means that all must work, work, work."

He certainly painted a picture gloomy enough to warm the heart of, say, Winston Churchchill, but he did it with a purpose; he wanted to alarm his followers thoroughly and to make them see that the economic situation was extremely serious. He did not go so far, however, as to make them despair, and I afterward discovered that he deliberately understated the actual extent of the economic breakdown and omitted altogether to touch on many very disquieting features.

He ended on a note of robust confidence and caused sensation by announcing in conclusion that six hundred million rubles in gold had been captured with Kolchak, although he must have known that the amount was only three hundred million. This news, by the way, had been carefully withheld from the public until the head of the Red army could use it, as he did, in an effective peroration.

RED LEADER'S APPEAL

I was surprised at the rapidity with which this speech was, by previous arrangement, echoed and reechoed all over the country. "The Fight Against Economic Ruin" became a catchword like "Wait and See" or "We want eight and we won't wait," or any of the other famous catch phrases of British politics. It became a stereotyped newspaper headline. It stared at one from placards on all the walls. To judge from the reports in the press, it was repeated by every village orator throughout the Urals. At a meeting of the Ekaterinburg Soviet which I attended it was the principal subject of discussion, and at a meeting of the Communist League of Youth, which Trotsky attended, Miss Yurovsky, daughter of the Czar's murderer and president of that league, delivered a speech on the same lines. Trotsky must have smiled his Mephistophelian smile when he heard all this parrot outcry, most of it almost a repetition of what he had said himself.

Trotsky's treatment of the working classes was marked not only by an absence of flattery but even by an autocratic touch which one would never have expected. Finding on his way from Moscow to Ekaterinburg that the workmen in a certain Ural factory were not working hard enough he had fifteen or the worst "slackers" arrested and placed on their trial before a workmen's tribunal in Ekaterinburg.

At one point on the line his train was stopped by snow, whereupon he had the whole of the local Soviet taken into custody for disobedience to the order for removing snow from the track. They also were tried before a jury of their peers; and, while the case was still sub judice, Trotsky wrote, over his own name in the newspapers, a ferocious onslaught on the accused, whose condemnation was thus made certain. He did not say anything about their delaying him, but he inveighed against them for delaying "the trains which brought bread to the women and children of Moscow and to the Red workmen who had hurled the tyrant from his throne and stood in the breach against Denikin and Judenitch."

Trotsky's train consisted of about a dozen carriages, but it could not be described as sumptuous, consisting mostly as it did of wagons-lits cars, all of them, save Trotsky's own car, being very much overcrowded with personnel, typewriters, desks, writing tables and documents.

LIKE CIRCUS TRAIN

All the outside of Trotsky's train was covered with advertisements of Bolshevism and incitements to class hatred. Imagine an American President touring the country in a train plastered all over with posters like that of a travelling circus! And yet, side by side with this ultra-Americanism and ultra-modernism (the latter represented by cubist and futurist productions that looked like nothing on earth), was a good deal of hoary old Czarism. Close to the futurist posters stood Lettish guards, who were as merciless as the janisaries of an Ottoman Sultan. About a dozen of them travelled on Trotsky's train and kept unostentatious but careful watch on every one who approached or entered it.

The police precautions taken to protect Lenin and Trotsky are as minute, though not as evident, as those formerly taken to protect Nicholas II. Thus the more Russia changes the more it is the same thing. It has had a tyrant who dragged it savagely—by the hair of the head, so to speak—abreast of contemporary civilisation. It has now a tyrant who thinks that he is driving it far ahead of all modern civilisation. But it always has a tyrant.

It was forbidden for any outsider to enter Trotsky's train without permission, and the name of all persons who had the entree were pasted up inside the doors.

Trotsky, to do him justice, is a remarkable man, and is idolised by the Bolshevists, who say, and with truth, that he is the ablest Minister of War that Europe has produced during the last six years of Armageddon. He formed a numerous and well disciplined army out of men who were sick and tired of warfare and who only supported the Bolshevists originally because the Bolshevists promised them peace. He did this despite the fact that he himself had never been in the army or studied warfare, except as an extremely anti-militarist war correspondent during the first Balkan war.

Most men find it hard enough to deal with one engrossing subject at a time, but he switches from one important matter to another a dozen times in the course of a single day and comes to a rapid and generally a right decision each time.

Leroy-Beaulieu says that "the Jewish mind is an instrument of precision; it has the exactness of a pair of scales;" and Trotsky has all the mental precision and the extreme intellectuality of his race. Owing to this fact and to the fact that he is very ambitious and is endowed with a ruthless physical energy and personal bravery which one does not always expect to find in a Jew, I am doubtful if Trotsky will always remain a Bolshevist or will always submit to the deeper but less agile Lenin. Trotsky resembles Lloyd George in many respects, and I should not be surprised if, like Lloyd George, he became practically a dictator. He could do so tomorrow if he liked, for he has the Red army with him, and his War Office in Moscow is a fortress bristling with machine guns and filled with troops who are devoted to him.

Quincy Todd On Money Lending

BY ROY K. MOULTON

My affable but peculiar friend Quincy Todd is not by way of being what you would call a regular loan shark, and he says he never lends money to anybody any more without a first mortgage on the borrower's right eye, but those who know Quincy to be the pleasantest liar in our suburb are inclined to doubt his word. Quincy always starts out by refusing to lend money and claiming that he is poorer than a college professor with nine children, but he usually gets the rubber off the old bankroll before the argument is over, and the borrower usually departs happily, to be seen in our neck of the woods no more.

In reality, Quincy has been the meal ticket of every panhandler who has blown into our suburb in the past ten years, being just naturally chicken-hearted, but in some manner or form he always gets it back, if not from the party who borrows it, then from some other party, which Quincy says money is money, and at the end of the fiscal year, as the saying goes, Quincy hasn't really lost any more dough than you can crowd into a flea's right ear.

"The first education in money lending that I get," says Quincy, "is about twenty years ago, when I am working the county fairs out West with a patent washing machine which will do anything in the world except wash clothes. It will husk corn, make apple cider, shear sheep, grind coffee, set type, peel potatoes, knead dough, sort beans, thrash pumpkins, bale hay, remove superfluous hair, half-sole shoes, press trousers, print wallpaper, perforate Swiss cheese, mix cocktails or knit sweaters, but it won't wash clothes, and so you can see business is pretty much on the blink, and when we sell a washing machine we have to beat it out of town on the next train before the buyer comes and brings it back. Well, all this travelling takes money.

"Well, my pal in this washing machine venture is a bird by the name of Fatty Banks, being called Fatty on account of the fact that he is about as fat as a stringless bean, and if there is crack in the sidewalk he has to watch his step or he disappears. Well, we have been close friends for a number of years, having pulled off several pieces of polite card playing here and there, and what's mine is his'n and what's his'n, I find later, is his own. He is a very generous bird, at that. If he has two apples he will eat one and keep the other himself, but I don't know all this until later. Well, we strike a town in Kansas that has got three sparrows on the telegraph wire by the water tank, also a general store and a bank, which is held up every Thursday morning and robbed every Sunday night. By the time Fatty and I get there with our washing machine we have about as fat a chance as Cox.

"Every shirt in that town is being worn, and, anyhow, our washing machine won't wash, and we are about the two most lonesomest looking birds you will find in a two weeks' ride on a motorcycle. But we have each other, which I find out later is not so very much.

"Well, we have been jimmying around there a couple of days, waiting for a chance to get ourselves and our sample washing machine into some unoccupied box car for a trip East, when Fatty comes to me all out of breath and asks me if I have got a hundred berries. I don't know how he knows I have got exactly that amount, but it is just what I have got, and he borrows it before I can say Jack Robinson, and he beats it in less time than you can count the Republican vote in Biloxi, Mississippi.

"Now he has always borrowed, and I am not worried much, for he is my pal. He starts with fifty cents and pays that back, then two bucks and pays that back, and so on up the line, and I believe my hundred is just as safe as Debs down in Atlanta jail. I wait all night for Fatty to come to the hotel, and next morning I hear he has eloped with the daughter of the guy who runs the bank, which leaves me very flat indeed, and I don't know whether I am afoot or horseback.

"The banker is very much put out and is going to shoot Fatty, and so I try to console him by getting him in a little game in the back room of the drug store for an evening's entertainment. I depart from that town next morning with 600 berries and I leave the washing machine for the banker to clip his coupons with.

"The next time I hear from Fatty Binks is five years later, when he is back in that town running the bank, but he neglects to remember the hundred.

"If you are going to loan money loan it to a stranger. If you see a friend coming hurry up and find somebody you have never seen before and hand your bankroll to him. You may never get it back but you will keep your friend and good friends are hard to get."

Which reminds us of the time a bird by the name of Leonidas Pringle, a stranger in a silk vest lavender trousers and silk hat blows into our suburb and borrows $3 from Quincy on the way from the depot to the hotel. Quincy wants to be the first to be touched, and he purposely gets in this stranger's way. Now it seems that this stranger is not a three-dollar guy, by any means, but that is all Quincy has got on him at the time, not being very dirty, as the saying goes, and having just been touched by Baldy Peters, who runs the bank, for one hundred beans for the benefit of a fund to buy plug hats for the cannibals in Zanzibar, Baldy being quite a philanthropist that way when he can do it at somebody else's expense. Him and Quincy are about as friendly as Trotsky and King George.

So this fancy bird asks Quincy where he can deposit some oil stock and get a mere pittance in cash to tide him over, and Quincy immediately thinks of Baldy Peters and chases this guy up to Baldy's bank. After about an hour the stranger comes out with $800, which he gets from Baldy, leaving his oil stock as security.

Quincy accidentally meets him in the lobby of the hotel as he is about to take the train, and he says, "Fifty-fifty, old humming bird."

"How come?" asks the stranger.

"You bunked Baldy Peters on that oil stock. It ain't worth a Canadian dime. You are guilty of false pretensions. Come on, fifty-fifty."

"Oh, all right, you bald-headed buzzard, all right," and he hauls off and hands Quincy $400 and beats it.

"How do you know that oil stock is no good?" asks Elias Q. Higginbotham.

"If it is any good," says Quincy, "no guy with a silk hat and fancy vest with swallows on it and a red necktie will have it. They ain't the kind of birds that deal in good stock.

"But the moral is" concludes Quincy, "don't never lend money but if you must, lend it to a stranger, when you have got a chance to get it back."

IN YOUR OWN INTEREST

we ask you to try our AERATED WATERS.

You will find our fruit drinks of a fine flavour, and delicacy of Aroma, hitherto unrealised in Aerated Waters.

Whilst economy may be a desirable consideration, it does not appeal to us at all in the manufacture of our products.

Our chief consideration always is QUALITY.

Just try our Aerated Waters, and they will be a revelation to you. Certainly you will stop experimenting and the knowledge that you are contributing to the Famine Relief Fund with no extra cost to yourself will add to your enjoyment of same.

ANGLO-SAXONS MUST MOVE FIRST

Marquis Okuma, In Interview Contends Japan's Navy Is Too Small

FAVORS A NAVAL HOLIDAY

But Armament Reduction Must Not Deprive Japan Of Defense

Tokio, Jan 13.—The responsibility for the competition in armaments lies with Great Britain and the United States and the first steps toward a naval holiday or any similar scheme for the reduction of naval armaments must come from them, is the view stated by Marquis Shigenobu Okuma, former Premier of Japan, in an interview given a representative of The Japan Advertiser.

Japan's naval power, he contended, is relatively so small that she should not be counted as on a par with Britain and America. Her assent should not be demanded until the two real naval powers, Britain and America, agree to curtail their naval programs. These two powers, and they alone, can put a naval holiday into effect. Marquis Okuma's position is that Britain and America have navies larger than their defensive needs and should lead the way in reduction.

"I favor the naval holiday idea as broached by Senator Board in the American Senate with two conditions," said the former Premier of Japan. "The first condition is that America and Great Britain first reach a working agreement for reducing armaments. They are the two Powers whose naval strength overshadows that of all others. The second condition is that under no arrangement must Japan be deprived of the sea forces needed for the defense of her coasts and her commerce.

TOO POOR TO COMPETE

"A plan for curtailing naval construction could work to the great benefit of Japan. While Great Britain and the United States continue to build battleships, Japan must in self defense follow their lead. But Japan is in no condition to engage in an unlimited naval construction program. She has not the money nor the resources. She is far poorer than either Great Britain or America. Her statesmen know that any attempt to compete in naval building with either England or America must be futile. While Japan continues to build warships it is for defensive purposes. Japan is not aiming her naval program at any power. No nation need be afraid of Japan's navy.

"It is very doubtful whether the socalled eight and eight program, that is the maintenance of eight up-to-date dreadnoughts and eight battle cruisers as the first line of the navy's fighting strength, can be carried out. Japan is too poor.

"Here the people feel the burden of heavy taxation. In America it is felt, too, and the outcry there probably is greater than in Japan. But Japan faces the serious threat of economic unrest if the burden of taxation to enlarge the armaments of the Empire continues to fall so heavily on the people. Just look at the budget that the Cabinet proposes to introduce in the present session of the Diet. Half of the total expenditures called for, aggregating a billion and a half yen, will go for the army and the navy. That is too much. We need some of that money for the enterprises of peace.

PEOPLE TIRE OF ARMAMENTS

"If the expansion of armaments continues, I believe the people of all nations will demand that the yoke of taxation for armaments be removed. The people of the world will not stand for unlimited armament building.

"The Japanese people have not yet reached this point. As I interpret public opinion, I belive our people are in favor of building a larger navy. There is a feeling here that the Japanese Navy has never come up to the needs of the Empire. Never has our building kept pace with the plans of our leaders. The reasons for this have been largely lack of materials for building warships and the lack of engineers with knowledge to build them. Now we have trained the engineers and we are getting the materials. There is therefore a public feeling that while we are able we should build a navy large enough to meet our needs.

NAVY PURELY FOR DEFENSE

"Japan's navy is and always will be purely for defense. The great British navy and the tremendous program now proposed for the United States show, from the standpoint of Japan, an aggressive aspect.

"The future of the world lies with the great Anglo-Saxon Powers. They have the power by agreement between themselves to stop the foolish and costly race of armaments. They are the great naval Powers. Japan is not on a par with them. It is their responsibility to take the lead in cutting armaments and the rest of the world must follow their example.

"The League of Nations cannot be depended on to bring about disarmament. The League is still a weak infant. Results can be accomplished only by the joint efforts of the Powers who are stronger than the League.

"The present position of Japan calls to mind the example of Germany. Germany tried to compete in a naval race with the British Empire. Germany was destroyed. This is a lesson which those Japanese who think Japan can compete with the Anglo-Saxon Powers should take to heart."
